QUESTION 9:

9A Read Source A and then answer 9.1

Source A

In this source the person describes how the medical people on board ship operated.

On the makeshift operation table, in candlelight, and on a ship shaking violently because of its canon fire, these men tried to treat their patients the best way they could. This often meant amputation (cutting off an arm or leg) because they knew that open wounds almost always ended up as gangrene (when a leg or arm starts to rot). They were willing to accept the risks of amputation over almost certain death from infection.

Adapted from Arnold Leuftink's book Chirurrijns Zeekompas which looked at the life on board a VOC Ship.

9.1 In your opinion, besides the fear of gangrene, what else should the sailors have been afraid of regarding the medical treatment they were receiving? Name at least 2 things. (2)

a. _____

b. _____

9B Read and analyse Source B and then answer 9.2.

Source B

In 1609 the VOC forced the people of Banda to establish a fort on the island. When the people of Banda resisted the Dutch monopoly, and tried to trade with other European nations, the Dutch made war on the people. Most of the people were killed and the rest were made slaves who were forced to work for the Dutch.

Source: The Dutch in the East, J. Engles, published in 1991

9.2 What does Source B tell you about the VOC's attitude and treatment towards the Banda people? Name 2 things. (2)
